PM ORAL LITERACY

Extending and Enriching Children's Oral Literacy

PM
oral literacy

PM Oral Literacy provides students with the essential skills and strategies they need to be confident speakers and effective listeners. All three competencies – reading, writing and oral literacy – are interconnected, and oral literacy is essential in the development of highly successful literate students and effective communicators. See the PM Literacy table below.

This series spans the first year of primary school through to Year 7. It recognises the fundamental importance of continuous oral and aural skill development throughout primary school.

The combination of interactive print and digital resources which comprise the PM Oral Literacy series will extend and enrich students' oral literacy skills, enabling them to think, speak, listen and question with confidence.

Oral Literacy, Reading and Writing – Progression of Levels

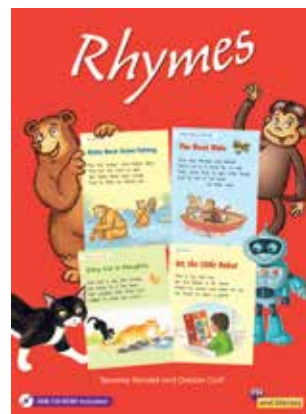

Oral literacy, reading and writing are the competencies students need to master to become highly successful literate children. The PM Literacy table below demonstrates how all elements of the PM literacy program interconnect, and how the careful levelling ensures these skills are developed at an accurately levelled pace.

The PM Reader's Theatre titles allow students to dramatise some of their favourite PM stories, along with some brand-new ones!

A slightly more advanced version of the PM Little Plays (levels 6–14), the PM Reader's Theatre comprises 30 texts.

PM Reader's Theatre plays do not involve the use of props – all action is conveyed in the dialogue. This allows students to explore characterisation and understanding of a story, as they develop the oral literacy skills of voice projection and speaking fluently and expressively.

- Standout features of the PM Reader's Theatre:
- at Consolidating level, five of the 10 texts comprise two plays
 - at Extending level, all 10 texts comprise two plays – all of which are brand-new PM stories. A range of genres are featured – history, adventure, humour, science-fiction and detective stories – specifically designed to appeal to 10- to 12-year-old students.
