

Nelson Professional Development Workshop

PRESENTED BY CARMEL SMALL

PM BENCHMARK: ASSESSING READING STRATEGIES IN THE CLASSROOM

This workshop focuses on best practice in the teaching and assessment of reading – that is, ensuring we have the right book in the hands of the right child at the right time.

We will explore the demands of the reading process, the matching of students to text, and we will unpack the benchmarking process. We will then practise taking a reading record, followed by a full analysis of recorded reading behaviours.

This session is practical and will link directly to the classroom. Any teacher who wishes to learn or refresh their knowledge about the benchmarking of reading should attend.

The session will cover:

- the Balanced Reader model
- understanding levelled texts
- the benchmarking process – tell/retell, reading record, comprehension
- taking a reading record
- using the PM Benchmark resource to accurately assess students' instructional and independent reading levels
- using the PM Benchmark process to assess students' comprehension (literal, inferential and applied knowledge), fluency and phrasing
- undertaking an error analysis in order to identify Meaning, Structure and Visual cues used by the reader
- using a reading record effectively with guided reading.
